PRACTICAL VIOLA SCHOOL

In two books, price 3/6 net each

By H. WESSELY

Written by one of the finest teachers of the century, this School is sound, progressive and thorough.

A second part accompanying the exercises is provided for the teacher, thus making the lessons musically interesting, and at the same time steadying the pupil, and teaching him to listen.

Any pupil who elects to study these books will be well equipped for the future, and any teacher who uses them will have little need to look about for anything better.

In conjunction with this "School," some quite easy pieces by T. F. Dunhill ("In Courtly Company," "Alla Sarabanda," "The Willow Brook" and "Meditation") and four slightly harder ones by Alec Rowley ("Aubade," "Scherzo," "Reverie" and "Farandole") would make ideal material for study and recreative purposes
